the making of (a new) ROME recent works by roman architects

LOS ANGELES Istituto Italiano di Cultura

the making of (a new) ROME

recent works by roman architects

This exhibition is dedicated to a series of recently built buildings that are quickly changing the architectural image of the city of Rome.

Each building is signed by the architectural firm that designed it and by the construction firm that actually realized it, recognizing though that the construction process is a complicate one, and the architect is not the only professional in charge for a successful building.

The selection is very open in terms of scale of the buildings - ranging from the urban scale to the scale of interior design - and in terms of architectural languages.

But all the works that are part of the exhibition share a common feeling for well fitting into the urban fabric of the historic city or into the lush landscape of the beautiful regions around Rome, for proposing simple solutions to complex issues, for being more and more sustainable, for the ability of knitting continual cross references between the present and the Rome's Association of Architects with its over 17.000 members, is Italy's most "cutting edge" professional organization and Europe's largest. Its activity has for some years been carried out not only at a national and regional level but also in the international arena through participation in European representative organizations, agreements and memoranda of understanding with European and non-European institutions.

Today Rome's Association of Architects, thanks in part to the creation of the Casa dell'Architettura and the Study Centre, is a hub of international connections, seeking to foster cultural exchanges and create collaboration opportunities among professionals from different countries.

The selection of the exhibits was done by a scientific committee composed by:

- Livio Sacchi
President Ordine Architetti P.P.C. di Roma e provincia
- Irene Pasquinangeli
Coordinator Ordine Architetti P.P.C. di Roma e provincia
- Alessandro Cardellini
Coordinator ACER
- Veronica De Angelis
Coordinator Fondazione Almagià

From 70 years ACER (Builders Association of Rome and Province) has been associating all the small, medium and big construction companies of Rome and its Province.

ACER is one of the most representative local branch of ANCE (National Builders Association). Thanks to the almost 3000 registered firms, ACER represents a business reality which is historically and economically extremely relevant for the roman area.

The Association offers information and assistance for the firms in many sectors: public works, city planning, private building, labor issues, safety at work, tax and administrative issues.

ACER assists the associated companies with its offices, organizes seminars for training and meetings for updating on the evolution of the industry on a technical and legal base.

Connected with ACER is also an operative company: ISVEUR (Institute for city planning and building development) which coordinates operations of social housing, urban redevelopment, infrastructuring and project financing.

Fondazione Almagià is a cultural Foundation established in 1947 by the Builders Association of Rome and Province (ACER) in memory of Engineer Roberto Almagià who was the first President of the Association.

It promotes the cultural growth of the construction companies through studies in the fields of building, developing training activities and supporting initiatives on these areas.

Its activity includes sponsorship of publications, grants, prizes and patronage of events about innovation in building sector.
